A notable advertiser, meely proclaiming the merits of his Spring Dress, Goods, lethis pen run away from his better judgment by saying: "The shades far surpass the glories of the sun-tinted cloud." We can-not quite say that about our goods: as we prefer the beauties of our Springfield sunsets to the dry goods business, every even-ing of the week and all day Sunday; but, nevertheless, we have just as pretty shades in Spring Sultings as ever left the hooms of Europe or America. You will find it a delightful little pastime some of these pleasant days to come in and feast your eyes on them; nothing loud or harsh among them, but soft dove, tan and wood shades, that rest the eye and please the mind. Come in; our young people behind the counters have lots of patience, as well as a pretty good knack of inducing the ladies to select their spring suits on the spot; "for fear it may not be here the next time you come down town. Yours respectfully.
